

Programme Outcomes (POs)

After successful completion of the B.A. Psychology Programme, students will be able to:

PO1: Demonstrate comprehensive knowledge of psychological concepts, theories, principles, and applications related to human behavior and mental processes.

PO2: Analyze psychological phenomena, evaluate evidence, and apply scientific reasoning to understand human behavior.

PO3: Apply psychological research methods, experimentation, observation, psychological testing, and data interpretation skills.

PO4: Communicate psychological concepts effectively through written, oral, and interpersonal communication.

PO5: Apply psychological principles and techniques to solve personal, social, educational, organizational, and community problems.

PO6: Develop self-awareness, emotional intelligence, leadership qualities, and professional competence for personal and professional growth.

PO7: Demonstrate ethical behavior, empathy, social sensitivity, and commitment to mental health and community welfare.

PO8: Pursue higher education, professional development, and lifelong learning in psychology and related disciplines.

III) Programme Specific Outcomes (PSOs)

After completion of the B.A. Psychology Programme, students will be able to:

PO1: Demonstrate comprehensive knowledge of psychological concepts, theories, principles, and applications related to human behavior and mental processes.

PO2: Analyze psychological phenomena, evaluate evidence, and apply scientific reasoning to understand human behavior.

PO3: Apply psychological research methods, experimentation, observation, psychological testing, and data interpretation skills.

PO4: Communicate psychological concepts effectively through written, oral, and interpersonal communication.

PO5: Apply psychological principles and techniques to solve personal, social, educational, organizational, and community problems.

PO6: Develop self-awareness, emotional intelligence, leadership qualities, and professional competence for personal and professional growth.

PO7: Demonstrate ethical behavior, empathy, social sensitivity, and commitment to mental health and community welfare.

PO8: Pursue higher education, professional development, and lifelong learning in psychology and related disciplines.

PO1: Demonstrate comprehensive knowledge of psychological concepts, theories, principles, and applications related to human behavior and mental processes.

PO2: Analyze psychological phenomena using critical thinking, scientific reasoning, and evidence-based approaches to understand human behavior.

PO3: Apply psychological research methods, experimentation, observation, psychological testing, and data interpretation in academic and practical settings.

PO4: Communicate psychological concepts effectively through written, oral, and interpersonal communication skills.

PO5: Apply psychological principles and techniques to identify and solve personal, social, educational, organizational, and community problems.

PO6: Develop self-awareness, emotional intelligence, leadership qualities, and professional competence for personal and professional development.

PO7: Demonstrate ethical behavior, empathy, social sensitivity, and commitment towards mental health promotion and community welfare.

PO8: Engage in lifelong learning, higher education, professional development, and continuous advancement in psychology and allied disciplines